Hon. Tom Reed Greeted by a Great Crowd of Hearers.

HIS DEFENSE OF PROTECTION.

The Democratic County Central Committee Holds Its First Meeting—A Big Bourbon Blow Out Next Month.

Thomas B. Reed's Meeting. Army hall, on Capitol avenue, was literally jammed last evening to listen to Thomas Reed, the silver-tongued orator from Maine. In the audience were many ladies, and to judge from the flutter of enthusiasm which seemed to pervade them, their sentiments were purely republican. The Eighth Ward (blue club) mounted the platform and sang a campaign ditty to the effect that "We Will Veto Grover C." emphasizing the fact, at which the audience laughed and applauded vigorously.

Mr. Reed, the chairman, then introduced Mr. Reed in a brief but eloquent speech.

Fellow Citizens, Ladies and Gentlemen: I have already spoken once to-day, and therefore I shall have to ask your patient attention to-night in order that I may do justice to the question before you. I am not here for the purpose of saving bitter and calling things about the democratic party; it is contrary to the natural sweetness of my disposition. I am here to tell you that the democratic party of Nebraska—if there are any such—will follow the example of the good democrats of Maine, and vote the republican ticket, they are all right, but it would only be necessary to change their opinion, not their party. I suppose you would not expect me to do so, if for nothing else, because we kept them out of power for twenty-four years; I don't think I should feel bad against them if any such bad luck should happen to us. The democrats have been in power for three years, and have turned out a great many men, but they have not turned out any republicans. [Great laughter.] The republican party, good as it is, is not in condition for immediate transition. We have a great question before us, one worthy of our closest consideration. It is not one of those questions upon which we can afford to expend rounded periods and eloquent sentences alone, which I want to common sense, which is hard to find in political speeches. During the past twenty-four years we have had at every presidential election some question upon which every thing hinged. We decided the question of the victorious termination of the war, the question of slavery, the question of the amendment of bonds and the question of the financial system of the country. You must decide on which side you will stand, the Lord's side or the other. You must not expect to blink this free trade question out of sight. When you have batted this November you have put yourself on record as being for or against it. Why is it that on this new question nearly every one is for the party that has been wrong for twenty years? The parties have turned themselves around on the one side and one on the other. Why is it that the democrats favor free trade and the republicans favor protection?

Mr. Reed then explained the principles of both free trade and protection, and, judging from the applause of the audience, which was frequent, it was satisfactory. A glance at the history of the democratic party will show that the bulk of the party are merely friends of the president, and that they are from the south. You must not expect to purpose of harrowing up the feelings of any democrat who may be present; it is merely a geographical designation. Before the war the south had a coarse sort of labor, one of drawn and muscle, for mind is impossible in a state of slavery. Mental power, as well as brain, has been exhibited in the history of the west. Protection advocates the principle that we can produce and consume what we produce within our own borders. Mr. Reed spoke at some length on the relative merits of protection and free trade, the odds being greatly in favor of protection. He referred to Allen C. Thurman as an ancient Egyptian, so ancient that he had forgotten everything that pertained to Americanism. He referred to Mr. Thurman's free-trade figures, which he proved to be both. Mills of Texas, to whom he referred as a gentleman whom he liked socially, but whose statesmanship he considered doubtful, came in for a "roasting." He referred to Mills as a statesman from the prosperous manufacturing state of Texas, which created a great deal of laughter. Four years ago Mills made a speech, which you can find in that cemetery of American eloquence known as the Congressional Record, which was very "spray eagle," in which he spoke of free labor, free trade and free men. Mr. Reed significantly said that Mills had been a confederate colonel. Mr. Reed presented a great many material statistics with reference to the surplus, and free trade, and his good points and witty allusions never failed to bring down the house in laughter and applause. In illustration he said, if a man should make a photograph of a cow and write underneath it, "This is a cow," it would not prevent the original from giving milk. This produced great laughter. Mr. Reed said that this was not a jest, it was an idea. Mr. Reed's points produced a strong impression upon his audience, and the applause was long and loud and came in frequent intervals.

A DEMOCRATIC PARADE. The Final Effort to Be Made Saturday, November 3.

At the meeting of the democrats at the headquarters of the Samoset club on Fourth street last night, every democratic club in the city was represented. On motion the president of each club was appointed a member of the committee on arrangements, the same to be regarded as an executive committee with power to act in all instances. The assembly decided to have the parade on the evening of November 3 (Saturday). R. P. Morton, James Murphy and Jeff McGeath were appointed a special committee whose duty it shall be to invite all labor organizations to participate in the parade. Julius Meyer, Charles Ogden and William Moran were appointed as a committee to tender invitations and communicate with democratic clubs of the country. The city in view of having them participate in the demonstration. A finance committee consisting of John Drexler, Ed Brennan and J. E. Riley was appointed, and the same instructed to raise necessary funds to defray the expense this incurred. The remainder of the executive committee to select. It is the intention of the democrats to make this one of the largest demonstrations that has ever been given in the history of the country. The meeting adjourned to Tuesday evening next at which time final arrangements will be made.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE.

Eucled Martin Outgenerals Charles Ogden For the Chairmanship.

The first meeting of the new democratic county central committee was held in the council chamber yesterday afternoon. The contest for the chairmanship of the committee rested between Eucled Martin and Charles Ogden. The convention—the eyes of the Martin element—was called at 6 o'clock, but the Ogden element was of the opinion that it was a 3 o'clock call, and hence when the meeting was placed in a business-like manner, the Martin element had it all its own way. A question arose concerning the time set, and of course, "2 o'clock" was the prevailing opinion. The convention was called to order by Eucled Martin and on motion T. J. Mahoney was made temporary chairman. A glance at the history of the democratic party will show that the bulk of the party are merely friends of the president, and that they are from the south. You must not expect to purpose of harrowing up the feelings of any democrat who may be present; it is merely a geographical designation. Before the war the south had a coarse sort of labor, one of drawn and muscle, for mind is impossible in a state of slavery. Mental power, as well as brain, has been exhibited in the history of the west. Protection advocates the principle that we can produce and consume what we produce within our own borders. Mr. Reed spoke at some length on the relative merits of protection and free trade, the odds being greatly in favor of protection. He referred to Allen C. Thurman as an ancient Egyptian, so ancient that he had forgotten everything that perdividual from the Third ward, however was unsuccessful. The chairman appointed Messrs. Mahoney, Gardner and Ford as a committee to select a location for a democratic county headquarters. On motion of Charles Brown the chairman was instructed to appoint an executive committee consisting of five members, and the same to be made known at the next meeting. An informal confab concerning the outlook was held, after which the committee adjourned to meet at the parlors of the Samoset club Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

AMUSEMENTS. Johnson and Slavin's minstrels, with fifty burnt-cork artists, will make the atmosphere in Hoyd's opera house hilarious on next Thursday evening with a programme full of new songs, new gags, new tricks, new dances and humorous sketches. Johnson and Slavin are departing from the conventional groove of negro minstrelsy and are introducing many new features, which make up a programme of unrivaled excellence. They opened the season the first week of August in the city of Boston, and since that time to talent has been amply attested by her good work in a play, for the exercise of the city, where their success was of the most gratifying nature.

That Jarboe possesses ability all players of the present will admit. NEWS OF NEBRASKA TOWNS.

A Brakeman on the Elkhorn Killed Near Fremont.

A VICTIM AT PLATTSBROUGH.

Both Legs Crushed and Amputation Will Probably Follow—Fire at Exeter—Lincoln Incorporates a Board of Trade.

Why He Left. FLEMING, Neb., Oct. 20.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—The proprietor of the Hotel Davenport of this city, who left home for Omaha three weeks ago and who had not been heard from since by his family or any of his friends, returned home last evening. His wife was telegraphed from Chicago that he was sick and would arrive here on the 7:30 train. When he arrived he was very much exhausted and during the night had a serious and almost fatal attack of heart disease, much of the time being unconscious. He was unable to give an account of himself until 3 o'clock this afternoon. He said that during his absence he had been visiting a sister at Duluth, Minn., and that he had gone there from Omaha to see if he could not get a repayment of $500 which he had loaned her some time ago, to relieve him of his financial straits. While there his sister was taken sick and was buried a few days ago. He has also been sick for two weeks. He says further that he wrote his wife five letters during his absence, but she failed to get a single one of them and was naturally very much alarmed over his absence. While he had several creditors he says he had no idea of running away to defraud them of what he owed.

A Brakeman Killed. FLEMING, Neb., Oct. 20.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—Ed Males, a brakeman on the Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley railroad, was suddenly killed at the Platte river bridge, seven miles west of Fremont, this morning at 5:30 o'clock. The freight train upon which he was brakeman stopped, as usual, at the bridge to start. Males was on top, and when the train started he was preoccupied with his duties, being unable to keep his footing on account of the heavy frost on the car. Thirteen of the cars had passed over him before the accident was discovered. He was dead when picked up, having his head, feet and arms terribly crushed. His remains were brought to this city and an inquest was held. The jurors returned a verdict of "an unavoidable accident," in which neither the railroad company nor its associate employees were responsible. Males was a young man about twenty-five years of age, without a family.

Fire at Exeter. EXETER, Neb., Oct. 20.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—At about 2 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the frame building on the north side of the R. & M. track, which was occupied by W. C. Woodworth as a furniture store, supposed to have caught from the stove in the office. This and a building owned by Sanford Williams were consumed, a part of the stock balance being saved by the citizens. The store was insured in the Hartford for $1,000; Germania of Freeport, $750. The building was insured in the Phoenix of Brooklyn for $400. The loss on the stock is $2,500.

Both Legs Crushed. PLATTSBROUGH, Neb., Oct. 20.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—Ellis Goolbsy, a switchman in the employ of the Burlington, met with a serious accident last night while attempting to couple some cars. His foot slipped and he was caught, the wheels passing over both legs. His physicians think amputation of one of them will be necessary to save his life.

Withdrawn From the Race. OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 19.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—A. L. Squire, the prohibition nominee for county attorney, has withdrawn and Rev. B. F. Hilton has been nominated in his place.

The prohibitionists are making desperate efforts to elect H. A. Walker, their nominee for representative, and, it said, are using Mr. Squire as a trading stone to draw votes from T. C. Westover, the republican nominee for representative, hence Mr. Squire's withdrawal.

A Burglary at Hancock. HANCOCK, Neb., Oct. 20.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—Handbury & Madsen's saloon was burglarized last night, the burglars securing $10 in cash, a lot of cigars, estimated by the proprietors at from $60 to $100, and some liquor, quantity not known. No clue to the perpetrators has as yet been found and the proprietors are at a loss to know how they gained entrance, as the house was found in the morning just as it had been left the previous evening.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 20.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—The Board of Trade Building association, organized with a capital stock of $250,000, composed of some of the leading capitalists of Lincoln and the west, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state at 5 o'clock this evening. THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Synopsis of the Minority Report on the Operation of the Law.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The civil service minority report, which was ordered printed in the senate record, says that no information was furnished to the minority of the common operations of the civil service or of a purpose to close the case, nor was it ever intended that the end had been reached and the matter summed up. For this reason the minority was unable, in the few days allowed them, to follow in detail the "tediously stated case," but it would endeavor to exhibit more fairness in dealing with the testimony than the majority had done. Despite the efforts of the majority, however, the report declares it appeared from the testimony of several of their witnesses that all the evils and abuses complained of to-day came down to this administration as an inheritance. The levying of assessments upon government officials for partisan purposes was in general, if not universal practice, prior to March, 1885, and discrimination in the matter of appointment because of political views was proven to be by no means a novel feature, nor one which had been introduced by the present administration. The minority declares that after review of the testimony it is irrepressible that improvement of the civil service reform of the country was not the idea to be kept in view, and the purpose of the framers was not to enlighten the country, as was proposed in the resolution. The report further states that from four cities or from four states, is to be accepted as evidence of the present condition of the public service throughout the country, will be admitted that to-day, after nearly four years of democratic rule, there are ten republicans in the office and drawing pay from the treasury where there was one democrat under the service on the 4th of March, 1885. Under a democratic administration it is not to be wondered at, if the conditions being equal, preference has been given to democrats in the selection of officials. Whether the civil service law be good or bad, truth and candor command, the admission that under this administration than ever before, whether the fidelity with which the president has pressed the law, the administration has observed this law was wise may be debated, but the honesty of the purpose with which he and they have endeavored to execute it cannot be truthfully denied. The army of hold-over republican officials to-day drawing its maintenance from the treasury of the country, and if current report be true, contributing to the salaries of the true, contributing to the salaries of the true, the effort that is being made to dislodge from power the party at whose sufferance they held their places. In the light of proof, suppressed and in many instances distorted, as the majority report shows it to be, the question naturally arises, was ever more desperate effort made, employing more desperate methods, to serve or save a more desperate cause? (Candor will not permit the claims of the majority to be taken at their face. In every instance every officer of the government, superior and subordinate, has been exactly and judiciously fair, and has acted without regard to the national and the public interest, but fair-minded men will take up the record and will declare that this administration has not been lacking in an honest, earnest, persistent and successful effort to execute the law and make good the plans that it and the party gave to the American people.
